

Candy- Illustrator

I chose to draw a garden, because I think that it can represent many things. At this point in the novel, Candy is trying to start a new life. She is trying to quit how she used to be, and have a fresh start. The garden symbolizes new life and growth. I also drew some weeds and bugs in the garden because those two things symbolize the bad. No one wants weeds in their garden because they ruin the appearance, and bugs eat away at all the new life. In a way, the garden represents Candy's life. She is trying for the good but she is still struggling. The sun shining on the garden symbolizes Joe's impact on Candy. He is not making Candy do what she is doing, but he is helping her along the way.
